Snorkeling Tour to Mahmya Island Hurghada

The Mahmya island of Hurghada, known as Giftun Island, is one of the most famous tourist islands in the Red Sea, Egypt. The island is the first marine nature reserve in the Red Sea and is an ideal destination for nature lovers, snorkeling and relaxing on white sandy beaches, located about 11 kilometers from the beaches of Hurghada. The island is home to more than 14 species of rare birds and is home to diverse coral reefs and marine creatures such as dolphins and sea turtles.

On this full-day guided tour, you'll explore Mahama, a small island off the coast of Hurghada that offers access to some of the clearest and bluest waters in the Red Sea.

After arriving at Giftun Island National Park, you'll snorkel in Sabina's Reef, a shallow-water area with a coral maze network that serves as a refuge for aquatic creatures, including reef sharks, stingrays, turtles, parrotfish, porcupines, and parrotfish. You will then be able to enjoy a game of beach volleyball and beach soccer before having an open buffet lunch, where vegetarian options are available, and after some relaxing time you will then return to Hurghada where the tour will end.

Daily excursions are organized on tour boats from Hurghada, and the trip takes between 30 and 45 minutes.

If you love nature and the sea, Giftun Island is a must-see destination when visiting Hurghada.
